

Welcome from the NAAG President

Dear Colleagues and Guests,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2010 NAAG Spring Meeting. This year's agenda brings together Attorneys General and federal officials to discuss pressing issues varying from community banking and sex offender management to prescription drug abuse. This event also gives us the chance to network with colleagues and discuss significant state and federal legal developments.

The theme of this meeting is State-Federal Partnerships – Shaping the Future. As we navigate our way through this fragile economic landscape, it is imperative that we continue to foster cooperation. During your time here, I hope you will meet with your state delegation serving on Capitol Hill and liaison with your counterparts in federal agencies that provide Attorneys General with additional resources and assistance in our public safety efforts.

I would like to thank the members of our Agenda Planning Committee—Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller and Massachusetts Attorney General Martha Coakley along with NAAG staff—for their time and effort in organizing this informative meeting.

It is my sincere hope that we will leave the meeting with new information and strategies to help us better meet the numerous challenges we face as the chief legal officers of our respective jurisdictions. Thank you for attending and I look forward to a very productive week.

Welcome from District of Columbia Attorney General

Dear Attorneys General and Guests:

I am pleased to welcome you to the District of Columbia for the 2010 NAAG Spring Meeting. The nation's capital, a city with unparalleled relevance to American jurisprudence, is an ideal backdrop for our discussion and collaboration.

While reconnecting with friends and colleagues, I hope that we can benefit from one another's experience and expertise. The issues we will explore, including community banking, prescription drug abuse, employee misclassification, and secure communities initiatives, are wide-ranging and also affected by the financial constraints many of our jurisdictions continue to experience. I am confident our shared knowledge will enhance each individual's efforts upon returning home.

Again, welcome to Washington, and please enjoy our wonderful city while you are here. I look forward to joining in the coming events, as well as continued collaboration in the interest of our citizens.

Sincerely,

Employee or Contractor? Crackdown on Misclassifications

One of the many consequences of the recent economic downturn has been a new focus by both states and federal government on the enforcement of employee classification. Misclassification of employees occurs when the line between contract workers and employees gets too blurred. Whether through ignorance, negligence, or an effort to avoid state and federal payments, employers who misclassify their employees risk hefty penalties. This panel will explore the issues surrounding misclassification of employees and discuss the implications for state Attorneys General offices.
