Attorney General Griffin Announces Settlement with Kars-R-Us.com, Inc. over Deceptive Charity Fundraising Scheme

Griffin: ‘Misrepresenting to charitable donors how their contributions will be spent is unconscionable’

LITTLE ROCK – Attorney General Tim Griffin issued the following statement after the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced it filed a lawsuit and settlement with Kars-R-Us.com, Inc. (Kars) over a deceptive fundraising scheme that the charity had engaged in:

“I joined the FTC, 17 other attorneys general, and four other state offices in suing Kars and its operators, Michael Irwin and Lisa Frank, for soliciting charitable donations of vehicles nationwide—including 318 vehicles valued at a total of $115,332 from here in Arkansas—that were supposed to assist patients battling breast cancer. The donations collected totaled more than $45 million nationwide, but it was determined that only $126,815 of that went to support breast-cancer patients.

“Under the proposed settlement order our coalition reached with Kars, the organization and its operators face restrictions on future fundraising activities, and Irwin will be permanently banned from fundraising.

“Misrepresenting to charitable donors how their contributions will be spent is unconscionable, and I am pleased to have reached a resolution in this case.”

Joining Griffin on the FTC's complaint and settlement were the attorneys general of California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Maryland, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, and Wisconsin; the secretaries of state of Maryland, North Carolina, and South Carolina; and the Utah Division of Consumer Protection.
